

We confess that we take the world for granted. We move through days thick with Your handiwork - light and darkness, sea and sky, seed-bearing trees and creatures of every kind - and we forget that every single thing we have ever seen or touched or tasted is the overflow of Your creative Word. You spoke, and it was. You called it good, and it was good.

On this Trinity Sunday, we bow before the mystery that was present in that first act of creation - the Father speaking, the Spirit hovering, the Word going forth - one God, yet not solitary, moving together in perfect unity to make something out of nothing and call it very good. We cannot fully comprehend that mystery, Father. But we can worship in the presence of it.

Remind us today that we are not accidents. We were made in Your image - carefully, intentionally, on purpose - and then You rested, not from exhaustion, but in satisfaction.

Speak to us now through Your Word, as You have always spoken - and let something new be made in us.

In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit - Amen
